SECRETARY KNOX ON THE AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY

Free From Selfish Ends, Always Promoting Freedom of the People.

In the Orient and Western Hemisphere.

FOR COURT OF ARBITRATION.

Philadelphia, June 15.—Knox sounded the keynote of American diplomacy under the present administration in his speech today at the commencement of the University of Pennsylvania.

Since American statescraft had its beginning in an effort to secure recognition for a young nation struggling to free itself from what it considered to be intolerable oppression, it is but natural that its earliest diplomatics should have been sound and guided by broad principles of international right, justice and equality as well as by large and fundamental considerations of humanity. Representing a small and weak belligerent nation in the difficulties of discipline, organization, equipment, men and finance, and realizing in the fullest measure as they did, how men they were to losing because of these difficulties their own struggle for what in their opinion, was a just and righteous cause, it is not strange that these men should have later sought some method of adjusting these international differences other than by the lawless anachronies of war. Therefore, in negotiating the treaty of 1794 John Jay finding it impossible at the moment definitely to adjust with those Indian tribes various boundary disputes along our frontier as well as other differences affecting the citizens of the two countries, preferred to provide that such disputes should be settled by arbitration rather than to leave them as open question capable at any time, of irritating the two governments into renewed conflict, and I must ever be ready to the cost of the government and the neutrality of the mother country that neutrality as they must have considered the greatest advantage which they might with reason hope to obtain through an armed settlement of these questions, they at first were not willing to join with the United States in negotiating a treaty which provided for the settlement of these disputes by peaceful means. By this treaty the two governments ushered in "the modern era of arbitration."

From this date, 1794, until the present time the government of the United States has uniformly and constantly exhausted every resource to settle amicably and peacefully its international difficulties, and during that time it has, including those now pending, taken part in some seventy arbitrations. It should, moreover, in connection with this matter, be observed that convinced as it has been that arbitration should be essentially a judicial rather than a diplomatic matter and that the award of an arbitral court should not be a compromise between a judgment founded upon principles of law and equity, this government has time and again upon the most appropriate occasions submitted to international tribunals questions of international law. It is in accordance with this principle that the United States and Venezuela have recently negotiated a protocol of arbitration providing for the submission to The Hague of the question of the revision of an international award.

It was pursuant to this same principle that, in the case of Beltrami against Haiti, the government of the United States, upon the protest of the government of Haiti, and as the result of an investigation of the facts and circumstances surrounding the case, itself declined to enforce and set aside the award made by the arbitration in favor of the American claimant.

It was this same spirit and understanding of international arbitration that led the government of the United States, upon charges of grave irregularity, to join with Venezuela in a revision of the awards made by the United States and Venezuelan commissioners of 1866, and which also prompted action of the United States

Never Since Dewey's Victorious Fleet Steamed Into New York Bay Has City Seen So Great Crowds

Thousands Flocking to the Metropolis to Join in Welcome to Roosevelt--Had to Call Off Parade.

Via Wireless, London, June 15.—Every one of Roosevelt's fellow-passengers had a chance to see and hear him. Roosevelt completed the round of the ship today. He visited the stowhold and grasped the grimy hands of stevedores and chatted with them. After a visit below he held a formal reception on the deck.

His visit to the stowhold was one of the most interesting events of the trip. The stevedores did their best to show their appreciation of the honor. As one laid down his shovel, Roosevelt grabbed it up and put several shovels of coal over the glowing fire. They cheered him heartily.

CLOUDS FILL NEW YORK.

New York, June 15. Strangers are filling up New York. Not since Dewey sailed into New York harbor with his victorious fleet has the city experienced such a rush. Big delegations from every state are pouring in to welcome Roosevelt. The general parade feature is abandoned, because all organizations turned out in solid formation it would take more than a day for Roosevelt to review the. Through riders and Spanish veterans will act as his personal escort.

Child Is Recovering.

Lawrence, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Adams, of Twenty-third and Clark streets, who was attacked and badly scratched over the head and face by the faulty eat last Friday night, is rapidly recovering and there is no danger of blood poisoning setting in.

YOUNG LADY FALLS ON STAIRS AND IS INJURED.

Mrs. Verne St. John, a clerk for L. D. Givley & Company, as the result of a peculiar accident this morning is confined to her home at Fifth and Ohio streets with a dislocated right knee cap. Miss St. John was climbing the stairs leading to the office when her foot slipped, throwing her forcibly on the steps and striking her right knee. A physician was called and she was taken home. She will be confined several days.

FARM DWELLING BLAZE
CALLS OUT DEPARTMENT

Fire burned the roof off a house belonging to Mrs. Kate Tracy this morning about 11 o'clock. The house is located on a farm on the Mayfield road about three miles from the city, and caught from a defective wire. Workmen succeeding in extinguishing the fire before the entire dwelling was burned. The news of the fire was telephoned to Mrs. Tracy, who thought that the hotel was on fire, and she telephoned for the fire department. Hose company, No. 1, made the run to Fifth and Jefferson, but there was no fire there.

Washington, June 15. The senate committee today recommended the passage of a bill, providing for the site of a building at Coopersville, Tenn., to cost $150,000.

The committee recommended the passage of a bill for the improvement and extension at Oakland City, Okla., to cost $170,000.

Lee Browne Claims Conspiracy Victim

Chicago, June 15.—The defense of Lee O'Neill Browne is that he is the victim of a gigantic political plot, of which Representative White is the tool. Senator Lorimer probably will take the stand. The defense has indicated it today when the cross-examination of White was resumed.

Attorney Forrest asked White why he picked out the Tribune to sell the story to. He was asked if it wasn't because the Tribune was hostile to

"IRISH" M'LOY IS MUSSEL FISHING IN UPPER OHIO

Friend and Companion Says
He Was Not Pool Road Victim.

Missing Ferryboatman Wires
He Is Alive.

MYSTERY REMAINS UNSOLVED.

Tom or "Irish" McLoey was not the victim of the Pool road murder and is alive and fishing mussel shells above Cincinnati, O., according to Sam Cook, a ship carpenter at the Paducah marine ways, who was a personal friend of McLoey.

"Irish" left here about the middle of March, said Cook today, and said he was going to Cincinnati. He went to the mines at Caseyville and worked several days and returned here. A short time later he and Frank Boatwright left for Cincinnati. Frank came home not long ago and said "Irish" was fishing for mussel shells above Cincinnati and was coming back here this summer.

Cook says that McLoey came here from Ireland and the description of the murdered boy did not fit "Irish" at all. He said McLoey was only about 5 feet 4 inches in height and had dark brown hair, which he said in the middle. He said McLoey's face was red but not freckled as was the dead boy.

Cook did not see the dead boy, but says he knows that it is not "Irish." McLoey stayed with Cook at his home near Tenth and Illinois streets from Christmas day, 1909, until March, when he left here with Boatwright. The latter saw McLoey above Cincinnati after the murderer here was committed and said he was living in a shantyboat. According to Cook, McLoey was not a jockey but was a race horse "rider." Tony Isom, who knew McLoey well, said that he saw the dead boy and it was not McLoey. Others who knew "Irish" are of the same opinion. Both Guy Dean and Tommy Farrin were acquainted with McLoey and both saw the dead boy, say it was not McLoey. McLoey is expected to return here this summer.

John Mainschein, the anenburg ferryman, who disappeared from Paducah April 9, the day the Pool road murder was committed, is alive at Evansville. The Evening Sun traced him last evening and this morning received the following telegram from Mainschein himself:

"Evansville, Ind., June 15.—I ran gasoline ferry at Paducah from March 26 to April 9.

"JOHN MAINSCHEIN."

Another clew is being worked now that may lead to the identity of the murdered boy found on the Pool road as a leather worker from St. Louis and a former Paducahian. Ever since the murder Mr. A. D. Buchanan, proprietor of a restaurant at 217 Kentucky avenue, has maintained that the murdered boy was the lad that ate at his restaurant for three days early in April.

According to Mr. Buchanan he remembers the lad distinctly because of his freckled face, and says that the corpse resembled the lad from St. Louis. One day the boy began a conversation with Mr. Buchanan, and said that he was employed as a leather worker in St. Louis, but they had gone out on a strike and he had jumped over to Paducah to have another look at the old town. He ate at the restaurant for three days and never appeared after April 9.

The boy never gave his name to Mr. Buchanan, but appeared to know the proprietor of the restaurant. Clerks in the restaurant also remember the dead boy and they say he is the same lad. Another fact that may show the lad to have been a leather worker is that his finger nails were black and oily. Deaf Employee Lawyer.

William Dean has employed Attorney David Browning as attorney to represent his son, Guy Dean, now in the county jail, being implicated by the confession of Tom Ferrin. Mr. Browning was attorney for Hale and Gule, who were in jail nearly a month on the charge of the murder.

TOWN BURNED.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 15.—Twelve foreigners, workmen for the Canadian power development, were burned to death early this morning when fire destroyed their boarding house at Falls View, Ont. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

CHARLTON'S TRUNK MISSING AND HE ASKED ABOUT STEAMBOATS.

Comto, Italy, June 15.—Police today are convined that Charlton, the husband, murdered Mary Scott Carlton, and salled for New York. They notified vessels by wireless to watch. This is in direct opposition to United States Ambassador Leisham, who still is convinced that Charlton is slain. The discovery that Charlton's trunk is missing, they claim, strengthens the evidence of murder. The positive statements of the postmistress at Moltrasio, that Charlton asked regarding the sailing time of vessels and of a carpenter who said Charlton asked how deep the water was, convince the police that Charlton left the country.

World's Missionary Meeting.
Edinburgh, Scotland, June 15.—The world's missionary conference, a representative gathering from the Protestant churches, opened under the presidency of Lord Balfour. There were 1,200 accredited delegates and 2,000 other representatives of churches and missions present. All civilized races are represented.

HENRY GOCKEL PUTS OUT
FIRE AT CANDY FACTORY.

Serious damage to the Stutz candy factory, Fourth and Jefferson streets last night was prevented by the fact that Mr. Henry Gockel, a well known baker, who lives near the building on North Fourth street, caught sight of the blaze just before retiring. About 10:15 o'clock he noticed a light at the rear of the building at the trash pile and upon investigation found a fire had broken out. Assuming the role of fireman, he dashed several buckets of water on it and succeeded in extinguishing it before there was any damage. The origin is unknown.

Who Knows Joe Kraft?

Probation Officer Joseph H. Kraft at New Albany, Ind., has written chief of Police Singery in an attempt to locate the grandmother of 15-year-old Eva Webb, who is in the care of a family in that city. The child was taken from a shantyboat there two years ago and claims her grandmother is a resident of Palma. Chief Singery has been unable to locate her, but is still investigating.

Flood in Europe.

Herne, June 15.—All lowlands of western Switzerland today are inundated as the result of the heavy rains. No loss of life is reported.

Property loss is heavy. Reports from Servia say the entire valley of the Morava river is flooded and at least 50 persons are drowned. Towns of the valley are partially swept away.

Killed By His Wife.

Yuma, Colo., June 15.—Silas Moyle, forest ranger, was shot and killed by his wife near here. The tragedy followed a quarrel.

MUST OBTAIN PERMITS AND OREY ORDINANCES.

A called meeting of the board of public works will be held at the city hall at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the City National bank and First National bank will be notified to obtain the necessary permits in tearing up the sidewalks in the construction of the new bank buildings. Excavations were made on the city's property without a permit and this will have to be remedied. The matter was left before the board of public works at the last meeting by City Engineer Washington.

Dickinson at West Point.

West Point, N. Y., June 15.—In his address to the graduates of West Point today, Secretary of War Dickinson held up Roosevelt as one of the presidents whom the fortunes of war boosted into the white house. He said eight presidents' reputations in war were potent in raising them to the presidency.

Dickinson said: "Where will you find in history any people with such a record as has been shown by our military men, who hold the chief magistracy?"

Concluding, he said the system of military education in this country is unsurpassed anywhere in the world.

Postpone Convention.

New York, June 15.—The annual convention of the National League of Republican clubs, scheduled for next week, is called off until September. Word came today from President Taft requesting a postponement.

ACCUSES FRIEND OF SHOOTING HIM DURING QUARREL

Will Taylor Says Ed Wood
Put Bullet in His Right
Optic.

Wood Held on Warrant and Case Continued.

HE INSISTS HE IS INNOCENT.

After working on the case for two days Patrolmen H. H. Doyle and Walter England gained a confession from Will Taylor at Riverside hospital yesterday afternoon. Taylor was seriously wounded Sunday night. He accuses Ed Wood, a pal of his of the shooting and said it occurred near Thirty-ninth and Clark streets.

Wood was placed under arrest at 9 o'clock this morning on a warrant sworn out by Patrolman Doyle, charging him with malicious shooting and wounding with intent to kill. Wood gave bond and was released.

Taylor, who was brought to Dr. B. L. Bradley's office immediately after the shooting Sunday night by Wood and was operated on at Riverside hospital, Wood was arrested an hour later on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and held as a suspect. Patrolmen Doyle and England began working on the shooting immediately and yesterday afternoon at Taylor's word at the hospital he talked for the first time. Taylor claims he and Wood had been riding Sunday and that night were near Tom Allen's residence, just outside the city limits on the west side, when Taylor saw he got out of the buggy and, immediately, Wood stepped from the buggy and shot him, saying: "You —, I'm going to kill you."

The ball entered just over the right eye, tearing out the ball and lodging in the upper jaw.

Taylor claims they came to town after that. When Wood was asked about the affair today he protested his innocence and said he knew nothing about it, except that Taylor got shot and he brought him to town. The case was called in police court this morning and continued until next Tuesday morning in order that Taylor might be on hand. He is improving and will recover. The charge of breach of ordinance against Wood was continued to the same day.

If Wood is guilty the police think there is more behind the affair, which led up to the shooting.

Upholds Betting Law.

New York, June 15.—Justice Aspinwall, of the supreme court of Brooklyn, upheld the constitutionality of the Hart-Agnew anti-race betting law and refused to dismiss indictments pending under the law.

Graders at Work

Graders are at work on the Western District warehouse, Second and Jefferson streets, today preparing for the sales to be conducted by the Planters' Protective association tomorrow, the regular sales day. Between 300 and 400 horses will be offered for sale.

Large number of out-of-town buyers are expected to be on hand.

Revival Popular

A splendid audience was present last night at the revival of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, Twelfth and Trisble streets. The Rev. T. C. Wilson, of Louisville, who is assisting the pastor, the Rev. D. W. Fooks, preached on "Because Thou Hast Left Thy First Love." It was a splendid sermon, and stirred his large audience. The regular evening service will be held this evening.

R. S. BARNETT CHOSEN
COUNCILMAN IN SIXTH

Former Alderman R. S. Barnett was appointed councilman in the Sixth ward today by Mayor Smith, to succeed W. L. Bower, who resigned on account of moving out of the ward. Mr. Barnett is one of the best citizens on the south side, and will add strength to the legislative department of the government.

By just one score the batting rally of the Indians yesterday afternoon in the ninth inning failed to tie the score and the Vincennes team drilled off the field the winners by a score of 2 to 1. It was a hard game to lose, but Vincennes a trifle outplayed the Indians, who lacked gingers, and decidedly outhit Paducah. However, Guinn twirled a splendid game, while Gosnell, the left-handed artist, pitched a swell line of ball.

The game started off with Vincennes adding two scores, and in the ninth the Indians came to bat with the score 2 to 0 in favor of the visitors. By a streak of lucky runners got on the sack and Manager Cooper was shoved over when Johnson muffed a long fly off Overton's bat. With Crain on third base and two strikes on Guinn, Crain started for the home pan. The tall pitcher made a dive for the pan, but the spire was too quick, and Catcher Johnson slapped the ball on his back before he plowed to the plate. It was a close decision, but Crain was too late by a few seconds.

For six innings the batters on both teams went down in one, two, three order. In the first inning it looked like Vincennes might score but a fast double play ended the danger. In the first Dehaven walked and Stanley sacrificed him to second. Jantzen walked. Hurst drove the horsehole to Ware, who handed it to Williams and he threw it to Cooper for a fast double play.

In the eighth inning Williams was at the bat for Paducah, and as he swung his bat at the ball it struck him on the left hand, mashing of a finger nail. Tidwell took his place at second base. It will mean that the little infielder will be off duty for several weeks.

It looked good for Paducah to score in the fifth, but Gosnell settled down and there was nothing doing in the scoring line. Block went out Dehaven to Nairn. Crain walked. Overton soaked a fly to left and Jones muffed it. Coated hard but hit a bounder to Dehaven and was out at first, while Crain traveled to third. Guinn struck at

No Chance for Six Tennis.

From the outlook last night there will be no K. I. T. league baseball team in this city this season. A telephone message from Morganfield stated that the ball lovers of Morganfield thought the undertaking too big for them. As soon as this was ascertained a telegram was sent to Pres-three bad ones and the inning was over.

Vincennes opened up for benders in the sixth. Stanley went out on a grounder to Cooper. Jantzen was safe on a fumble of a bounder by Cox, who permitted the sphere to go under his arm. Hurst was given a free ticket. Nairn smacked the ball for his third hit of the day and Jantzen came home. Jones ended further danger by hitting a hot drive to Cooper.

In the eighth the Alcées made another tally. Jantzen hit to left and pilfered second base. Hurst hit a high one to center, which Angermeyer failed to scoop up with one hand after a long hard run. Block threw wild to third to catch Jantzen, who scored on the ball was lost in the bleachers.

In the ninth the Indians made a grand attempt to overcome the lead.

Gosnell became nervous, and it looked good for a victory, while the fans whooped and hollered. Cooper was first up and was socked in the ribs.

Block hit a high one to center field and was out. Crain was given transportation and Cooper was advanced to second. Unyne flew out to Dehaven. Overton hit a long fly to right field, which L. Johnson dropped and Cooper crossed the pan. Guinn was at the bat when Crain made a desperate effort to score on the squeeze play, but was nabbed at the plate.

Umpire Plepho will leave tonight to the Vincennes team, where he will officiate. His umps have given entire satisfaction to the Paducah fans, although Plepho has umpired every game played on the local field.

He rules the field with a hand of iron, and what he says goes and the players know it. Umpire "Connie" Smith will officiate in the remainder of the games. Since his appointment in the league he is said to have given satisfaction.

Doyce Carroll, who was with Paducah, has signed up with Harrisburg, Ill., in the Southern Illinois league, and is playing center garden. Carroll did good stick work at the opening of the season, but his batting dropped.

Lee Hart is playing with Caruthersville, Mo., in the Arkansas league.

Hart is filling the out gardens and pitching in cases of emergency.

Today was ladies' day at the ball park, and the closing game between the Alcées and the Indians was well attended, especially by the fair sex.

The game was called at 3 o'clock in order that the Vincennes team could catch the 6:20 o'clock train for Hopkinsville tomorrow. Manager Nuern announced that either Bailey or Johnson would work, while Manager Cooper will choose between Crain, Payne and Lockhart.

Tomorrow Clarksville will arrive for a series of four games.

there was of getting Cairo. He telephoned in reply that he had been trying to locate Guy Elshemperger, who has always promoted baseball in Cairo, but he was not in the city and there was no chance to get any one to take hold of the matter.—Henderson Gleaner.

Like the "Umps." The game was umpired by Mr. Connie Smith, of Louisville, a new man in Clarksville. His work was entirely satisfactory. He is capable and strictly attentive to every detail of the game, evidently desirous of being entirely fair and just to both sides. His decisions are rendered promptly and distinctly. He is said to be the sort of umpire who will not stand for any foolishness whatever, being strictly business.—Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle.

In the La Abra and Well cases, in which this government, having become convinced that fraud had been practiced by the American claimants in an arbitration with the government of Mexico, relieved Mexico from paying such part of the award as it had not already paid, returned to Mexico the sums paid upon the award and undistributed to the claimants, and in addition, appropriated by congressional act a sum to repay Mexico the amount which had been paid and distributed to the claimants and which was, therefore, beyond the reach of the United States.

Not only did American and British diplomacy, by the treaty of 1791, usher in "the modern era of arbitration" as to specific subjects covered by special arbitration agreements, but in 1857, the foreign offices of the two governments have reached the conclusion that certainly between England and the United States there were no question of any kind whatsoever which might be decided by international arbitration.

International Cases. Not only has the United States sought thus to settle its own difficulties by the implements of peace rather than by those of war, but it has also exerted all proper pressure to induce the world to adopt the principle of arbitration as a means of settlement of international disputes.

New York, June 15.—For the third straight time Chicago defeated the New York. The contest was settled in the seventh inning, when the visiting visitors made six runs, knocking out the award in this case has been scrupulously observed by Mexico, against whom it was made.

It is more than passing interest to note that in referring to the Pious Fund case to the International tribunal for determination the United States and Mexico were the first third straight time Chicago defeated the signature powers to invoke the jurisdiction of this newly created tribunal; and it is interesting to add that the award in this case has been scrupulously observed by Mexico, against whom it was made.

The efforts of the American delegation at the second Hague conference resulted in the readoption in an extended and amended form of the convention for the Pacific settlement of international disputes, as well as the framing and adoption of a convention for an international court of arbitration.

It is confidently expected that the initiative of the United States will lead to the early establishment of the Hague and a permanent court of arbitration.

In the Orient.

From the very commencement of our intercourse with China, American diplomacy in that empire has been marked by a just regard for the rights of China as a sovereign power and has consistently aimed to promote the interests of the Chinese people no less than those of our own.

The first treaty entered into by the United States with China was negotiated by Caleb Cushing, and signed at Wangha in 1844. Its spirit and purpose of American diplomacy are admirably illustrated by the article which provides that American citizens who shall reside in China shall be subject to be dealt with by the Chinese government without being entitled to any compensation or protection from the United States.

Notwithstanding that China was compelled by treaties with certain powers in 1858 to legalize the opium trade, the United States again in 1860 proposed to the government of the "Open Door." Following the use in 1858 and 1859 of various portions of Chinese territory to Germany, France and Great Britain, with exchanges of notes in which these powers, together with Japan, were recognized each as having special interests within certain provinces of the Chinese empire, the United States secured from each of these powers a declaration giving assurance of equality of treatment within these so-called "spheres of interest" for nationals of all the powers; and, preliminary to the settlement of the Boxer troubles, the United States again addressed the Chinese government to accept the "Open Door" proposal.

Still more effective, however, was the action of this government in 1900, in proposing to the powers having territorial possessions in the far east the appointment of a commission to study the opium problem and propose measures for its solution.

The first appointment of diplomatic officers to represent China at the capitals of the world was due to a suggestion made by the American minister at Peking, Anson Burlingame, who, with the consent of revenue to the establishment of such a colony.

A very other occasion might be given in illustration of the intrinsic value of American diplomatic relations with China, one more of which, however, has excited more favorable comment than any in 1882, namely, the sum of $453,000,000 in the treasury of the United States after payment of some 200,000,000 of the Chinese reparations to Britain made up in contributions toward Canton in the process of making out the act of compensation authorizing the return to China of the crew of the U.S.A.T. "Enterprise," which will amount to some $11,000,000.

With Japan.

The history of modern Japan begins with the landing of Commodore Perry in 1853, when, overruling the objections that had baffled every previous effort, he succeeded in securing that right to foreign intercourse. His achievement was purely local, both in Europe and America, as a great triumph of political diplomacy.

Nowhere is this fact better understood or more readily acknowledged than in Japan itself. Nine years ago a stone tablet was unveiled at Kyoto, Japan, in commemoration of the landing of Perry, or just of forty-eight years before. The tablet was erected by the Japanese court and people, and the inscription was written by Japan's leading statesman, one of the foremost statesmen of the world, the late Prince Ito. In the course of the ceremony, the presiding officer said:

"The monument is erected to preserve on stone our determination never to forget the friendship of the United States that sent Commodore Perry to us in a peaceful way to open up intercourse with foreign powers."

It has been truly said that "such an occasion and such a tribute are without a parallel in the history of nations."

Commodore Perry was followed by Townsend Harris, whose patient and untiring efforts in laying the foundations of diplomatic intercourse with Japan are too little appreciated, even by his own countrymen; nor while "the genius of Perry unbarred the gate of the Island empire and left it ajar, was it the skill of Harris that threw it open to the commercial enterprise of the world."

A man of distinguished ability and striking moral character, he is held in grateful remembrance by the Japanese people of today.

The modern progress of Japan, which began with the arrival of Commodore Perry, has been influenced and assisted at every stage by the disinterested friendship of the United States. Japan's earliest attempts at a reorganized government were based upon the American model, and American ideals shaped her educational and financial institutions. American advisers assisted in the development of agriculture, a postal system, and foreign intercourse. America, alone of the foreign powers, returned the indemnity exacted after the attack upon foreign vessels at Shimonoseki in 1863. It was America that took the lead in recognizing Japan's inherent right to complete autonomy in matters of tariff and jurisdiction, and as early as 1858 advocated a revision of the ancient treaties to accomplish that result. In 1856, an extradition treaty was negotiated between the two countries, on a reciprocal basis, largely, as stated by President Cleveland at the time, "because of the support which its conclusion would give to Japan in her efforts towards judicial autonomy and complete sovereignty." The treaties that are in effect today, signed in 1894, were framed on the lines that had for years previously been advocated by the United States.

The educational and medical institutions in Turkey which have been established by the American mission and which have been productive of so much good have received at all times all proper support from this government. The world-famed Robert College, at Constantinople, has done much to spread western enlightenment and progress throughout that region. Many statesmen of note have there received the principles of western civilization.

American institutions in Turkey have done a great work a work which has also favorably affected the peaceful extension of American commerce.

Africa.

For some years past the conditions in the Congo have engaged the earnest attention of a large class of our philanthropic citizens. The attitude of the United States has been one of benevolent encouragement, in the hope that the promised reforms would in their actual operation meet the high demands of public sentiment. With the accession of King Albert, who, as well as his Minister of the Colonies, has recently personally visited the Congo and studied conditions there, encouragement is felt for an effective policy of practical reform. I am happy to say that the recent promulgation of decrees to facilitate free trade, revise the rubber tax, and ameliorate other burdensome conditions are a further augury of the accomplishment of an end which we, together with the rest of the civilized world, ardently desire to see attained in that vast region peopled by our less fortunate fellow-men.

Liberia.

An excellent example of the disinterestedness and fairness which characterize American diplomacy is afforded in the traditional attitude which the United States has assumed toward Liberia. This little negro republic on the west coast of equatorial Africa was founded in 1822, under the auspices of the American Colonization Society, with the aid and assistance of the United States government. The motives underlying the movement which resulted in the founding of Liberia were: The hope of the abolition of slavery and colonization of the free negroes, the providing of a refuge for negroes captured on slave-traders, and of a home for American negroes, and the desire to civilize and Christianize Africa through the instrumentality of such colonization.

Perhaps the most significant indication of the continued interest of the United States in Liberia was the sending of a commission to that country last year under authority of congress, to inquire into conditions there and report recommendations to the department of state.

Western Hemisphere.

Now turn to what is by far the most active sphere of American diplomacy, namely, that of our relations with the twenty other republics are passing through an evolution similar to our own—that of the peopling and developing of vast areas and the attempt to perfect republican government under similar institutions.

From the time the United States became an independent nation this government, while respecting its obligations to European powers, has frankly and consistently wrought for the establishment and maintenance of a popular, free, and independent form of government for the countries which share with us this hemisphere. Just emerged from our own war of independence, the struggle of the southern republics awoke a responsive chord in the heart of the American people, and in 1823 this government hastened to recognize as sovereign states the republics of Spanish South America, and named ministers to represent it at their capitals.

Turning to modern examples, by the Spanish-American treaty signed at Paris in 1898 and its accompanying documents this government, to the surprise of the world, spontaneously, and by action for which history scarcely affords a precedent, recognized the independence of Cuba.

While the greater American republics have long since acquired an industrial and governmental credit comparable to that of the oldest nations, the treasures of some of the most backward republics have at times virtually succumbed under the weight of exorbitant foreign loans, which, with improvident financial administration, have sunk them deep in debt. The problem of good government is inextricably interwoven with that of economic prosperity and sound finance; financial stability contributes perhaps more than any other one factor to political stability.

The republic of Honduras is typical as a country laboring under the disadvantages referred to. It has a heavy bonded debt, held in Europe, for which it has in its national wealth no proportional return. The interest fell in arrears and it became absolutely necessary that the debt be refunded and the damages placed upon a sound basis. At this juncture a group of American bankers came forward prepared to offer terms more advantageous to Honduras than those offered on behalf of the actual creditors. Believing that a strong Honduras would tend enormously toward a stable and prosperous Central America the government is heartily supporting the plan for its financial rehabilitation. If the arrangement made proves, upon the closest scrutiny, to be just and equitable, then the government will be prepared, with the consent of the senate if a treaty is desirable, to give it such guarantees as shall afford the bankers legitimate security for their investment by recognition of such relation as the government of Honduras may create between the payments due the banker and a proper portion of the export revenues.

As illustrating the manner in which it is hoped that American diplomacy may thus benefit Honduras and Central America, it is a pleasure to refer to the signal success of the Santo Domingo arrangement. The political history of Santo Domingo from the foundation of the republic in 1844 until 1905, the year of the modus vivendi, which was followed by the convention of February 8, 1907, may be sketched to a kaleidoscope of revolution interrupted only by deposition. Through these chaotic years foreign bondholders of three or four different nationalities had by various arrangements mortgaged upon the revenues of as many different ports as security for loans, sometimesurious and always unremunerated. The situation had become from every point of view impossible, and Santo Domingo turned to the United States for assistance. After the consideration of various plans the before-mentioned modus vivendi and convention were hit upon as a satisfactory solution. As a result of the good offices of this government the great majority of the creditors, relying upon the guarantee to be afforded by the financial stability brought about through the con-

Some other dealers will show you a refrigerator in which the partition between the food chamber and the ice chamber is constructed like a shutter. Now when you see this, just bear in mind our warning: Unless this partition is as tight as it can possibly be made, except at top and bottom, you are certain to have trouble when the ice is partially melted, for the air will rise no higher than the top of the ice; hence in this "shutter" style you have a dead air space which will cause food on the top shelves to mould and become tainted.

is built as a refrigerator should be. Science and experience have enabled us to produce a food container which is well nigh perfect. If you need a refrigerator this season, take advantage of our THIRTY DAYS FREE TRIAL offer; it will demonstrate the superlative merits of The Herrick better than anything we could tell you in words.

The Herrick has an ingenious Water Cooler arrangement which you will like. The water is placed in a tank outside the refrigerator and circulates through a pure block tin coil on which the ice rests. It gets ice cold without coming in contact with the ice. This is true ice economy, as you never have to break and chip at your ice supply and the water never becomes tainted with ammonia, etc.

vention, accepted a settlement where outstanding obligations to the face value of some thirty or forty million dollars were funded for about eighteen million dollars. Thus the stability of the United States has assisted the republic of Santo Domingo to reduce by half the face value of its debt, to furnish unquestioned security, and to have a customs administration so efficient that, after caring for the liquidation of a relatively enormous debt, it has supplied ample funds for all governmental purposes, the surplus for such purposes being actually greater in amount than the total revenues which entered the Dominican treasury prior to the present customs administration. On the political side it has freed Santo Domingo from apprehension of intervention on the part of creditor nations, and has contributed immensely to domestic tranquillity and prosperity, unaccompanied by violent repression, to a degree never before known in the republic.

The Santo Domingo plan was vigorously opposed in and out of Congress by those who regarded it as a deviation from our policy of aloofness from participation in the internal affairs of other countries. I suppose it was a departure, but if this government can help to uphold its neighbors and promote the thought that the capital of the more advanced nations of the world would be better employed in assisting the peaceful development of those more backward than in themselves, it is such a deviation from tradition as the American people will approve.

The spirit of good neighborhood and of mutual helpfulness, consideration, and confidence has always made possible to our diplomacy the settlement with a minimum of friction of the great variety of questions which geographical proximity has from time to time raised between us and our Canadian kinsmen. In the same spirit we are soon to negotiate with them for a tariff arrangement of greater mutuality and more consonant with our common interests of neighborhood. With the republics to the south of us, commerce, which unites so powerfully for friendship, is flourishing under conditions very favorable to the great export products, and which it is hoped may in time be adjusted in some cases upon a more reciprocal basis. The investment of our surplus capital and the exportation of our products not absorbed by the home market, like the influence of three great American republics on the side of peace in an effort to avert pending war between Peru and Ecuador, an action by which the three governments have given to this hemisphere the honor of first invoking the most far-reaching provisions of The Hague convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes.

Panama Canal.

The completion of the Panama canal will be seen within a few years as the culmination of four centuries of aspiration. That the government of the United States, when private enterprise had failed, itself undertook the burden and responsibility of this great work is a good indication of the importance this government attaches to the advancement of Pan-American relations. The United States has always taken a sympathetic and practical interest in the advancement of the Pan-American railroad. It would be most desirable to see as much as possible of the great highway, which it is necessary to build to connect the Americas, built by the co-operation of the enterprise of the countries through which it passes, and by convention, dedicated solely to the uses of commerce upon reasonable and equal terms. The cause of American peace would be greatly advanced if its use were forbidden for military purposes in the event of internal war in any country or in the event of war between countries through which it passes.

Through the historic demonstration of the candor and singleness of purpose of this government's diplomacy, and through its quiet application to the task of doing and of seeking equity and justice, these relations, I believe, stand today upon a foundation firmer as they become more intimate; and the fact that the spirit of neighborly helpfulness is common to governments of other American republics and to our own is shown increasingly year by year.

To mention only one or two of many examples to illustrate this fact, one may recall the settlement of the ancient boundary trouble between Peru and Ecuador, the reference of the ancients Panama-Costa Rican boundary dispute to arbitration through the good offices of the United States, and, quite recently, the tripartite offer of mediation by which the Argentine Republic, the United States of Brazil, and the United States of America, acting in the most harmonious accord, cast the influence of three great American republics on the side of peace in an effort to avert pending war between Peru and Ecuador, an action by which the three governments have given to this hemisphere the honor of first invoking the most far-reaching provisions of The Hague convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes.

News of TheatresAt the Star.

An excellent program was presented at the Star theater last night to big houses and the whole bill was enthusiastically received by the Star patrons. The Roosevelt pictures were instructive as well as highly entertaining.

Cosgrove opened the vaudeville bill with a very neat athletic act and was well received.

Scott and Davis give a very high class song and dance act, which is far above the ordinary song and dance act and was heavily encored.

Stanley and Weaver have a shadow graph act, which brings forth the laughter and although it is apparently designed to appeal to the children, it was quite noticeable that the old children enjoyed the act quite as much as the little ones.

Frank Long scored with a beautiful illustrated song.

This program will be given Wednesday. A complete change of program goes on Thursday afternoon.

Prof. Monaghan's Lecture.

It should be understood that while invitations have been issued by the Knights of Columbus to hear Professor Monaghan's lecture at the Casino, Wallach park, on the evening of Thursday, June 16, the public generally will be welcome and the lecture will be free.

The lecture will be given tomorrow (Thursday) evening at Wallace park by James C. Monaghan, of New York. The subject will be "The Flag, America and Opportunity." Mr. Monaghan is well known as an educator and orator and is delivering a series of lectures throughout the country. Everywhere he has been received by large audiences. He has held high places on the faculty boards of Wisconsin and Notre Dame universities and has been prominently identified with the consular service. In 1908 he was the recipient of the Laetare Medal from Notre Dame.

Mr. Monaghan spoke to an audience of 4,000 people recently in Illinois, and much enthusiasm was aroused by his address. An eminent critic speaks of him as follows:

"It is hard to tell accurately wherein lies the power of Mr. Monaghan over his audiences. It is not so much in the words he utters, though they are always distinguished by force, scholarship and literary flavor. I have heard him several times, always with the greatest pleasure and profit to myself; always satisfied that he has spoken the true and timely and earnest word in the true and sincere and felicitous way; and always puzzled as to how exactly to account for the spell which he weaves over an audience. There is only one word to describe it and that is genius. But it is more than genius. It is the power of the man who knows."

No charge for admission will be made and the public generally, especially citizens who are interested in educational, industrial, commercial and civic questions, are invited to hear him.

Charge Fraud Through Mail.

New Orleans, La., June 15.—Gerald C. Evans, alias O. C. Bailey, charged with having used the mails to carry on a mail order fraud in this city, by advertising 12 quarts of standard brand whisky for $5, was returned to New Orleans Monday morning by United States Marshal J. H. Anderson, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and C. H. Horsley, who acted as guard. He was arraigned before Commissioner Chalupa Monday and held under a bond of $2,500. The warrant for his arrest alleged that he secured $5 from J. B. Davidson, of Hamilton, Miss., by false representations.

Have you paid your city taxes yet? The penalty goes on soon, you know, and you might overlook this matter. It would be best to look after this today.

MAGNA CHARTA.

Six hundred and ninety-five years ago the Magna Charter was extorted at Runnymede from King John by the barons of England. These feudal tenants of a tyrant king for the first time in history called in question the divine right of a monarch and enforced at the sword's point a recognition of the individual rights of subjects. Such particular constitutional guarantees as they secured referred a feudal tenure, a relation obsolete in our day, and bear little resemblance to our theories, predicated on the doctrine that "All men are created equal;" but it made the first breach in the divinity that hedge about a throne, and its memory is sacred for that reason.

PREVENTING EVIL.

How an editorial on a big social question is accepted is always interesting, and many points of view are gained, when "one airs his opinion" to the public. Yesterday The Evening Sun dared to speak plainly on a social condition, that is menacing the very foundations of our civilization—racial virility. Complacently good citizens, who attend their devotional duties regularly and let it go at that, clapped their hands in glee, and accepted the editorial as a reflection on the police, when really it was meant as a reflection on them, instead of the police. We wonder that the police can keep any sort of order, with public sentiment dormant, as it is.

Others, of course, thought it a reflection on the town and bent let alone. They are in the same class with those, who would not placard houses, containing smallpox, for fear the news would get abroad that there is smallpox in the town. Such could be expected to perfume their bodies in preference to bathing.

The real fight against the social evil is just like the real fight against tuberculosis: the social evil and tuberculosis have both existed in our midst all our lives; therefore we have concluded they are necessary evils. For five years the medical fraternity of the United States has been fighting for the prevention of tuberculosis and only now is any appreciable response to their efforts being manifested by the public. When we become accustomed to the prevention of both the social and physical disease, we shall realize that we have taken another step upward from barbarism.

RED HAIR AND THE WUNDER-LUST.

Color of the hair has always been identified with the disposition, but has it anything to do with the homing instinct and wanderlust? Have red headed boys a propensity for getting themselves lost?

This question seems worthy of serious consideration, in view of the developments following the discovery of the mysterious murder on the Pool road of some youth, whose familiar appellation by popular consent must be "Red" among his intimates. We never knew so many red headed boys to be lost, strayed or stolen at one time, and the publicity given their names, we are happy to report, has resulted in more than one fatality being killed. The Evening Sun modestly admits its humble instrumentalities in restoring numerous red headed boys to the bosoms of their families. Some day The Evening Sun will be host to all the red heads it has forced home in self-defense, and then the people of Paducah will be able to appreciate in some measure the part a great daily newspaper plays in the private affairs of individuals in a community.

Reckless tongues have added to the dramatic possibilities of these disappearances, and whenever a red headed boy comes from home, the circumstances appear so peculiar, that his associates are at once shown up in a suspicious light. Only yesterday by careful editing was the reputation of the companion of one red headed youth saved from suspicion: for "Reddy" left April 9, the day of the Pool road murder, without warning, leaving all his belongings at his boarding house, and his dearest friend sloped in the same way, the very day the two suspects of the "Red" Thompson theory were released from custody.

It is odd how many boys of the "strawberry blonde" type of beauty dropped out of sight on or about April 9. Leaving out of consideration the incident of the Pool road murder, of course, it is but natural that the wanderlust should seize a lad, be he blonde or brunette, when the mounting sun first starts the sap to leaf and bud. This accounts for satisfactorily when "Red" finds his way back home.

They were not all killed. By the process of elimination possibly by us, we shall learn the real name of the unknown victim. When all the wandering red heads are checked up, and one is left—he will be the victim.

Governor Haskell should be granted a change of venue, if the government has to select a jury from the vicinity of Guthrie.

CHAUTAUQUA FEATURES

A feature which bids fair to be one of the most interesting and inspiring of the entire session will be the Union Service of the Cairo Men's Bible class and the big Bible class of the Broadway M. E. church Sunday morning, June 19, at 10:30 a.m.

The Cairo Men's class numbers nearly five hundred intensely enthusiastic members, and a large percentage of attendance is expected by special train. These men in Cairo are accounted one of the strongest influences for good in the entire community and their presence here should have a marked tonic effect on the activities of our own big class.

While the Union Services will be conducted by the men, the general public is urged to attend. Come out to the meeting and see for yourself why this big body of men finds the study of the Bible so deeply interesting.

Some Stories Around the Town.

Monday's Cincinnati Enquirer contains the following interview with a Paducah man:

Spurred by the activity of the cities of the Upper Ohio Valley in securing choice and large portions of space in the Ohio Valley Exposition for next fall, the industrial interests of the Lower Ohio Valley are becoming diligent in the matter of perfecting plans for displays, and the prospects now are that there will be the keenest kind of competition between the two sections of the honor of making the most comprehensive as well as the largest display of industrial products and resources.

But with all this Mr. Roosevelt has so deported himself abroad so as to command respectful attention, although he created that divided opinion concerning his character and capabilities which exist in America and makes him more or less problematic.

His three addresses in Paris, Berlin and Oxford, all made before great universities had respectful attention.

The first was an especially happy effort, and well received, though the two others have been the subject of some criticism in Europe was such as was expected of one of his restless, versatile and self-assertive temperament, and he has, in some respects, done credit both to himself and the country.

There has been nothing, however, in the European tour to call forth for the ex-president any undue admiration at home, and some of the extravagant things that have been said of the honor reflected on the country by his "splendid deportment," etc., have no substantial foundation in fact.

Public curiosity, respect for the high office he has filled, and that abundant advertising which his African hunt and other things had inspired to give him, made him the object of marked attention abroad. He has the faculty of getting himself talked about wherever he is. He is a remarkable example of perpetual motion. His energy is abundant. He is always doing something. He stirs up things and necessarily he is the subject of attention and discussion.

All America is glad to welcome Mr. Roosevelt home, but with the great majority the welcome has no reference to his political future or any influence he is expected to exercise on public affairs. The idea that matters have in some way gone wrong during Mr. Roosevelt's absence and that he has come to set them right, is entirely futile. The country is in much better financial condition than it was when he left office. The policies of prosecuting the trusts have succeeded better under his successor than during his seven years in office. The country is Bridal at Memphis.

Invitations to a piano recital given by Miss Mayme Palmer at Memphis, Tenn., Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock have been received here by friends of Mrs. William C. Gray, a soprano, of Paducah, who assisted Miss Palmer, her niece. Miss Palmer is a pupil of Miss De Sazzo at Memphis and was assisted by other pupils of the class and Mrs. Gray, Miss Palmer is also a niece of Mrs. W. M. Jones, of Paducah. Although very young she is one of Memphis' most talented musicians. For her excellent work in that city she has won three scholarships in the Bolling-Massey Music studio, one of the most widely known in the south. Two years ago she won a free scholarship under Goncalo, of Chicago, in a contest of over six hundred applicants. She was recently elected president of the Melodeon club at Memphis, one of the leading musical clubs of that city. The recital took place at the Bolling-Massey studios and the program was:

Polonaise (Chopin) Soaring (Schumann) Novelette (Schumann) — Miss Palmer.

A Song of Spring (Neldlinger) — Mrs. Gray.

Dreams of Love (Liszt) Arabesque (Leschetizky) — Miss Palmer.

May Morning (Mannay) — Mrs. Gray.

Concerto — E Major — Allegro Deciso (Moszkowski) — Miss Palmer.

Mrs. Gray, who is now visiting Miss Palmer, will return home in a few weeks, accompanied by Miss Palmer, who is considering locating in Paducah.

German Club Dance.

The German club will give the second of the summer series of dances at Wallace park this evening at 9 o'clock, complimentary to the two brides-elect, Miss Mabel McNichols and Miss Blanch Hillis. A number of out-of-town guests will be present, and it promises to be an unusually delightful affair.

Entre Nous Club.

Miss Sarah Saunders will entertain the Entre Nous club on Thursday, the 23rd of June, at her home on Fifth street and Kentucky avenue.

To Miss McNichols.

Mrs. Percy Paxton will entertain with an informal five o'clock tea this afternoon at her home on Jefferson street complimentary to Miss McNichols.

Sloan-Bamberger Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Sloan to Mr. Sydney A. Bamberger, of Owensboro, will be celebrated this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 503 North Seventh street. It will be a very quiet affair with only the relatives and immediate family present. The Rev. Lovitch will perform the ceremony and the couple will leave immediately for an extended bridal tour.

The bride will wear a blue traveling suit with all the accessories to match and will carry a bouquet of bride's roses and sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Bamberger will divide their summer between Owensboro and Paducah and after September 1 will make their home at Montgomery, Ala., the headquarters of Mr. Bamberger.

Ladies' Laike League Party.

Successful in every respect was the Ladies' Laike League tacky party at the Central Labor union hall Monday night. The costumes were novel, the amusements enjoyable and the refreshments were delicious. Mrs. W. E. Greenhough won the ladies' prize, and Mr. Gilbert Young the gentlemen's prize.

Elks Party Postponed.

The party at the Elks Home to have been given by the young ladies this afternoon was postponed until Thursday week.

Complimentary to Miss McNichols and Mrs. Goodson.

The home of Mrs. J. B. Hartie was a fairyland in every sense of the word yesterday afternoon when she and Miss Willie Mai Rascoe entertained in honor of Mrs. J. A. Goodson, of Dixon, and Miss Mabel McNichols, the attractive bride-elect. Receiving cards at the door were Little Misses Leon Utterback and Barbara Nell Paxton.

GO SOUTH
YOUNG MEN!EXODUS TO BRITISH NORTH WEST DEPIRED.

Louisiana Congressman Sounds Ringing
Note for Opportunity Afforded in South.

POPULARIZE THE FARM LIFE.

Washington, June 15.—With "Go South, young men and immigrants," as his keynote, Representative Randal, of Louisiana addressed the house, as a sort of advance agent for the southland in general and Louisiana in particular.

He based his remarks on the exodus of many of our best citizens into the British possessions north of the United States, and the rapid congestion of our cities, caused by the growing unpopularity of life on the farm, and by the large influx of foreign immigrants, many of whom settle in cities. As a remedy for all those problems, he suggested to the house that the persons concerned should be induced to come to the south.

"In my judgment," said the Louisiana statesman, in discussing the drift of people from the farms to the cities, "this is one of the fruitful causes of the high price of living. All food products—and the food we eat is our heaviest item of expense—comes from the ground or the sea, and when the number of consumers who dwell in cities disproportionately exceeds the producers in the country, it naturally results in high prices."

Living Growing Higher.

"If the relative growth of population in city and country remains the same for the next decade, and production of food be not materially increased in some very unlooked for way, I see no reason why the price of edibles should decrease, but rather expect an increase," he predicted.

In this connection Representative Randal said that "what is happening to us is also happening to the nations of Europe."

He also showed that during the last five years 312,614 citizens, emigrating with them material wealth in money and property, valued at over $312,000,000, "to say nothing of the immense potential value of each of these splendid people," emigrated from the United States into Canada. He commented at length upon the concentration of aliens in the cities of the United States.

The southern states would gladly furnish homes to every one of our own citizens," said he, "who have gone to Canada or contemplates such a move, and would welcome all the boys and girls who have left or expect to leave the hardships of northern farms to seek unfamiliar work in congested cities. Moreover, we can supply farms to a great many of the foreigners who seek our shores, and we are really anxious to receive all good immigrants of the Teutonic, Scandinavian, British and French races."

Then he entered into a description of what the youth offered.

A few years ago, he remarked, the southerners were nearly all farmers and the one crop was cotton. "His success was seized some time ago by King Corn and is now firmly held by that monarch," he added.

But corn and cotton are not the only crops grown in the south, Mr. Randal gave the house to understand. He told of a great change that had come over it and the present practice of diversification of crops.

Southern's Diversity.

With this diversity of crops, the congressman painted the south as a fine place for domestic animals. He gave real enthusiasm to the advantages of "my own Louisiana for the lowly worker."

The farms were not the only things the south had to offer. Mr. Randal informed the house. He suggested that an inspection of mining, mercantile and manufacturing statistics would show that.

He challenged the statements that the south was not a healthy section. The whites, he said, were just as healthy as whites in any other portion of the country. "The negro race is not healthy," he admitted, "for reasons which the scope of this speech prevents me from discussing."

Speaking of the negroes, the congressman had something interesting to say about the race question.

"Some one asked about the race question in the south," said Mr. Randal, "whether the Caucasian and the negro could well together in harmony? I unhesitatingly answer that they can and do live in the most perfect amity, each race pursuing its own methods and working out its own destiny in friendly co-operation and competition, but without social community.

Race Problem Solving.

"The negro question is settling itself and under the guidance of a wise Providence the negroes not only of the south, but throughout the entire nation, are destined to fill their places and do their part in kindly friendship with their white brethren. In many localities of the south there are very few negroes, and prospective immigrants can regulate this question entirely by settling in colonies, a plan which has very much to recommend it.

"But even without colonies there is nothing in the negro question to cause trouble. As a matter of fact, there are innumerable white farmers scattered throughout the south, and it goes without saying that the majority of the people in cities and in business pursuits are white."

He based his remarks on the exodus of many of our best citizens into the British possessions north of the United States, and the rapid congestion of our cities, caused by the growing unpopularity of life on the farm, and by the large influx of foreign immigrants, many of whom settle in cities. As a remedy for all those problems, he suggested to the house that the persons concerned should be induced to come to the south.

YOUTH MISSING

POLICE ARE LOOKING FOR MARTIN SCHEIDT.

German Lad Wanders Away From His Home at Columbus, Indiana.

Chief of Police Singery has received a letter from Chief of Police G. J. Cooper, of Columbus, Ind., asking the local department to keep a lookout for Martin Scheidt, 16 years old, who has been mysteriously missing from his home, two miles south of Columbus, since June 7. The lad has light hair and blue eyes and is well educated, speaking both English and German fluently. He is about 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 130 pounds and intelligent looking. It is the belief that young Scheidt has gone towards the southwest.

CUMMINS WINS VICTORY.

Chosen Temporary Chairman of Iowa G. O. P. Convention.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 15.—Senator A. R. Cummins was chosen as temporary chairman of the Iowa state Republican convention to be held in Des Moines Aug. 3, over Char Grill, of Davenport, newly nominated for congress from the Second Iowa district at the Republican primaries.

The insurgents control the committee with 7 to 3 stalwarts.

AT THE THEATRES

A Girl at the Kentucky Fools

Hollies.

For an English girl to do an Italian impersonation which sometimes fools Italians is a distinction that few can claim. But Miss Frane Kelcey, of the Three Kelcey Sisters at the Casino has done this and has two interesting bits of evidence to prove it.

One is a "mash" note written in Italian by a young man in Fort Dodge, Iowa, who was sure after seeing Miss Kelcey's impersonation, that she was one of his companions. The note asks the privilege of meeting her and conversing in the native tongue. Miss Kelcey speaks some Italian during her impersonation, but not sufficient to carry on a conversation, and she had hard work to convince the Italian that she was not an Italian but part English and part French.

The other piece of evidence is a beautiful jade pin, the shape of a turtle and as big as a silver dollar.

This was given her in Chicago, by a man who sent his daughter with an invitation to call on the family and bearing the present. Miss Kelcey declined both the present and the invitation, explaining her nationality.

Afterwards the pin was sent to her.

A striking feature of Miss Kelcey's

HEROES HONORED

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION RAISED SHAFT.

United States Senator Bob Taylor Was the Orator of the Day.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 15.—An occasion of national importance took place at Sycamore Shoals, Carter county, when a monument erected by the Daughters of the American Revolution was unveiled and dedicated on the spot where the mountain men gathered under Campbell, Shelby and Sevier to begin their march to King's mountain, where their defeat of the English army turned the tide of the revolution and led to Cornwallis' surrender. The occasion took to the historic and picturesque valley of East Tennessee hundreds of people, representing more than a half dozen southern states. Special trains were run from Bristol and Johnson City, into which towns had poured the visitors from other sections.

The statue was resurrected from a stable left by Dr. D. G. Murrell, and he spent several weeks repairing the figure as several fingers and minor parts had been broken, and it was necessary to replace them. Dr. Murrell is experienced in wood carving, and his work is equally as good as the original. The statue is being painted white, and will be dedicated and placed in the public library with appropriate ceremonies.
